

AMENDMENTS TO THE SPECIFICATION

Please replace paragraph [0006] with the following marked-up version of the paragraph:

[0006] Allowing applications to automatically gather contact information about a user can also be problematic, even when a user has provided implied or actual consent to the application to gather their information. For example, if a single computing system is shared by multiple people, the computing system may have access to different contact information for each of the people that share the computing system, thereby increasing the ~~possible~~ possibility that an application can obtain the wrong contact information for any particular person using the computing system at any particular time.

Please replace paragraph [0046] with the following marked-up version of the paragraph:

[0046] In other embodiments, the user can also be presented with additional personas that have been identified and that might correspond with different people, such as for example, when the user has not yet been identified by the computing system ~~though~~ through a logging on procedure.